Yes, I have him holed up in a corner office with a good view of the lake. We talked about "the paper". I think we might still go through it but maybe hand it off to someone like Derik Hager with input from these new hires as senior data engineers as well. No Amar. I just think it would be a good thing for folks to complete. Not necessary programmatically in the sense of deliverables, but our scientists need to take advantage of publishing opportunities when they come up.
